Dear Team Leader,

I'm writing to share the latest update on our group project. We've completed the planning stage and finalized the structure of the deliverables. The team has begun drafting the content, and several sections are already nearing completion.
We did encounter a challenge with aligning some of the data sources, which required additional verification. This took extra time, but we've now resolved it and integrated the corrected information into our work.

Looking ahead, we anticipate finishing the project by expected completion date. With the current momentum, we're confident about meeting this timeline.
Thank you for your continued guidance. Please let me know if you'd like a more detailed breakdown of progress or any interim review.
Sincerely,
Team members
